

In Association with Simon Fraser University's Sketching in Practice (SKiP) Symposium

<http://sketchpractice.ca/blog>

Drawn to See Field School

June 24, 2017, 10 am to 6:30 pm
Vancouver, B.C

Website: drawntoseefieldschoolsfu.wordpress.com

General Information

A one-day field school exploring how drawing can make us more perceptive ethnographic observers.

Led by Dr. Andrew Causey, anthropologist, artist, and author of Drawn to See: Drawing as An Ethnographic Method.

Join us for an exciting day exploring drawing-based techniques for enhancing ethnographic attention. This event is designed for anyone interested in ethnographic methods and/or ways of knowing. No drawing experience is necessary (truly!). Andrew Causey will lead participants on a visual foraging expedition in downtown Vancouver, teaching techniques for "drawing-enhanced seeing" that anyone can incorporate into their research and note-taking processes. The workshop also offers an opportunity to reflect on and discuss ethnography as a way of knowing, particularly how, in Causey's words "participation – being active, alive, vital – is as essential as observation – using your reserve, focus, and concentration."

Directed at

Students (advanced undergraduate and graduate) are welcome, as are experienced ethnographers in anthropology and related fields.

Registration

Pre-registration is required:
drawntoseefieldschoolsfu.wordpress.com

Registration Fee

Non-refundable $50.00 material and supplies fee required in advance to confirm registration. The fee provides you with:

- Copy of the book Drawn to See, by Andrew Causey. <http://www.utppublishing.com/Drawn-to-See-Drawing-as-an-Ethnographic-Method.html>
- Basic drawing tools for the day's activities.
- Catered dinner during the final debriefing session. (Lunch on your own)

Registration Deadline: June 15, 2017

Spots are limited. Register early to secure your spot.

Questions about the field school:

drawntoseefieldschoolsfu@gmail.com

Organizer: Dr. Stacy Leigh Pigg, Professor, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Simon Fraser University